

Our Wonderful Junior High School Life

These three years were a very fantastic and wonderful time for us. We could learn many things from school life, events and club activities in three years.

We challenged to do various things from our grade objectives decided each year in April. For example, “Be elegant”, “Live gracefully”, and “Make stress your friend”. These grade objectives were made on the basis of the phrase “Shine yourself” in first and second year junior high school.

In first year junior high school we had a locker check and appearance check. In Midori school, we realized everyone has a personality and we could understand that each personality is important by talking to our classmates.

In the second year of junior high school we went to Kamakura. We went to many temples and we learned the depth of Japanese history.

I think, of the first two objectives, “Be elegant”, is a continuous applicable goal. We can act on how we should behave in public places, as a woman and as a member of Joshiseigakuin.

This year we feel we are “grade zero high school students”. Third year junior high school’s objective is different from previous years. It was made on the basis of how we think and act for life after one year. We have lived while being conscious of beginning high school life one year later. For example, we tried to take mock exams, for practice, without test monitors. Normally high school students do that, but we did it this year.

After this, the class of 73 becomes one team and we will compete against other grades on sports day and the choir contest. From now we will see things from the viewpoint of high school students. Not only will we help lead the school events, but we will also set the tone for the behavior and attitudes of daily school life.

We want to use what we learned in junior high school. We have been preparing for high school life and many other things. Thank you very much to the teachers who have taught us for three years. And thank you very much to our parents and family.
